Foreign worker programmes have been abused: DOL

-: D. Ram Raj :-

For too long, foreign worker programmes (read as jobs in the US under H-1B visas) have been abused at the expense of American workers, a spokesperson of the Department of Labour (DOL) of the United States government said in reply to queries from Trinity Mirror on the deeper impact of the Interim Final Rule (IFR) issued by the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) on H-1B visas.

The idea was to get clarity on issues such as, "If H-1B visa applications in professions other than Information Technology such as healthcare, education and hospitality would also be affected in terms of Indians or other foreign put an end to these harms. professionals wanting to seek opportunities in the US." Trinity Mirror posed a series of questions to the Department of Labour on the implications of the IFR vis-à-vis job opportunities and wage outgo for foreign businesses in the US as well as US businesses.

The spokesperson of the

DOL in a very curt reply

said, "The Department of Labour's commonsense rule to improve several foreign worker programmes protects American workers by reforming the prevailing wage methodology used by the Department. For too long, foreign worker programmes have been abused at the expense of American workers. The Department's rule will help

The Department refers all questions regarding the litigation to the Department of Justice."

The questions posed: 1. Does it simply mean that existing foreign employees on H-1B will not get extensions and will have to return to their respective home countries? 2. How many Indian IT staff are employed under the H-1B visa in the US?

3. Other than IT professionals, will professionals in sectors such as Education, Healthcare or Hospitality industry also be strongly affected/impacted by the new rules?

4. Can a professional with a H-1B visa at present (currently valid) transfer to another company on the basis of the same H-1B visa? If yes, what norms will the professional or the recruitment company have to fulfil in terms of wages and other working conditions to accept new employment/ employee? 5. Overall, will there be an impact on the salaries/ wages for foreign employees at present working in foreign companies in the US or US companies (say Google or Microsoft)? 6. Will IT companies (other segments) in the US (both US origin and foreign) have to bear additional financial impact because of the new H-1B visa norms?

Trinity Mirror will continue in its efforts to get better light by interacting with experts.
